Terror of gun raid workers

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

SHOP staff are living in fear after being subjected to a catalogue of armed robberies during which they have been held at gunpoint.

This shocking CCTV footage shows the latest terrifying incident on June 5, when a man in a hooded top aimed a gun at the head of a worker at Maksud Store in Strathmore Avenue, Luton.

Mohammad Faruk Baksh, 45, has owned the shop for five years and worryingly, says this incident – in which three robbers got away with £500 in cash and cigarettes – was the twelfth he and his staff have endured in that time.

Just last month, Luton on Sunday reported that workers in the shop were attacked during a robbery involving a group of six teenagers.

Mr Baksh said: "I have owned this business for five years and have lost count of the number of robberies there have been in that time, but it must be around 12."

"On five occasions the robbers have been armed with weapons and on three occasions the weapons have been guns."

"I have had a gun pointed at me once and on the other occasions it has been my colleagues.

"I don't know what to do anymore, I feel completely helpless."

"I'm scared when I'm working and I'm scared when I have to leave colleagues in charge in case something happens when I'm not there."

"Business has slowed down and my customers have also stopped coming here as they don't want to be caught up in an armed robbery if it happens again."

"This shop is my livelihood and I don't want to close because of these people who are targeting me, but I don't know what else I can do."

A Bedfordshire Police spokesman said: "Any robbery that is reported to the police is fully investigated."

"In the most recent case at Maksud Store on June 5, scenes of crime officers carried out a forensic examination and detectives interviewed a number of witnesses."

"CCTV footage was taken and released to the media in the hope of identifying the suspects and crime prevention advice was offered to the store owner. Bedfordshire Police take this sort of offence extremely seriously."

GUNPOINT: Armed robber demands cash and cigarettes from staff at the Maksud Store

Driver, 47, killed in A5 crash

A 47-YEAR-OLD lorry driver from Luton died at the scene of a collision between two HGVs on the A5 in Northamptonshire in the early hours of Friday.

Both lorries were travelling in opposite directions on Kilsby Road, in Watford village, when they collided, resulting in a fire.

The driver and passenger of the other lorry were not seriously injured but were taken to Northampton General Hospital as a precaution. They were subsequently arrested on suspicion of death by dangerous driving.

Police are appealing for witnesses.

Northamptonshire has suffered 20 traffic deaths this year and a local councillor has called for action.

Historic pub ‘burnt down deliberately’

BY JULIA SUTTON
editor@lutononsunday.co.uk

A 12th CENTURY coaching inn completely destroyed by fire was deliberately burned down, a jury has been told.

The Norman King, in Church Street, Dunstable, was damaged beyond repair in August last year after the fire took hold of the thatched roof.

Before the jury at Luton Crown Court is 43-year-old Richard Waters, who pleads not guilty to arson, being reckless as to whether life would be endangered.

Prosecutor Will Noble told the jury on Thursday that the Grade II listed building was in the process of being refurbished and was closed at the time.

It had been due to re-open in September last year as a function room.

He said CCTV cameras were installed at the premises as a security measure following a failed arson attempt in early August.

Mr Noble said the fire started just before midnight on August 9 last year and led to 50 people from neighbouring houses and the Old Palace Lodge Hotel next door being evacuated.

Fortunately, the fire did not spread, but the pub could not be saved.

INFERNO: The blaze which engulfed and ultimately destroyed the Norman King pub in Dunstable

He said images from the CCTV hard drive showed a man with shoulder length scruffy hair in a ponytail sit down on a step at the front of the Norman King before rolling a cigarette and lighting it.

The man struggled to get to his feet and then crouched down again.

Waters, of Western Way, Dunstable, was arrested after images from the Nag's Head CCTV were published in the local media and he was recognised.

The fire damage was so intense that fire investigators were unable to carry out a full investigation, but the evidence is consistent with the fire being set using a naked flame to the underside of the thatch above the front door.

The case continues.

Council ‘excited’ by new support provider

A PRIVATE company has been awarded a contract to provide support services for the mentally ill.

Luton Borough Council has appointed Penrose Housing Association as its new service provider to help some of the most vulnerable people, their families and their communities.

The contract will begin on July 1 and will replace the Supporting People Programme.

Contracts have been offered to 28 existing staff to join the new service provider but it is uncertain how many others will face job losses.

A senior manager at one of Luton's existing service providers said: “Our concern is that Penrose are a new, untried option. They're going to be working with new client groups they've never worked with before in a town they've never worked in before and they haven't got a base in Luton.”

Cllr Mohammed Ashraf said: “This is good news for some of our most vulnerable households whose needs are complex. We are genuinely excited by the innovative and value for money services offered.”

“We also expect Penrose to attract employment, training and social enterprise, enhancing the high quality of housing-related support it provides and contribute to Luton's ‘Pathway to Independence’ vision.”

ONLY ONE EURO ARREST
JUST one arrest has been made during Euro 2012 in Bedfordshire.

At Luton Airport a major police operation has been under way to ensure potential trouble-makers have been ‘questioned and checked thoroughly’.

One person was stopped at the airport at the start of the tournament with large amounts of cash and arrested on suspicion of money laundering before being released on police bail pending further enquiries.

PITCH PRICE REDUCED
DUNSTABLE Town Council has said that the majority of pitch prices at Dunstable Market have dropped since it took over as manager on June 1.

Town Clerk David Ashlee said there was now one standard price for each pitch size compared to previous management Wendy Fair Markets, which charged traders per foot for their pitch.

Mr Ashlee said: “The council has made £40,000 worth of investment in the market and we are starting to see the results, with more interest in pitches and more visitors.”

HAVE A SAY ON CUTS
‘LUTON... Your Say’ is asking residents to fill out questionnaires to find out what they think about the need to make big savings due to Government cuts.

In the first phase of ‘Luton... Your Say’, residents are being asked to discuss five areas, including libraries and waste collection, to explore what options for savings might exist.

Cllr Robin Harris said: “Councillors do not think it would be fair to ask residents to decide where the savings should be made in Luton.

“But we are asking everyone in Luton to think about the savings options we are considering before any decisions are made.”

Furore over criminals' 'mugshots' on buses

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

MUGSHOTS of convicted criminals are being posted on buses to trumpet the police's crime-busting efforts – but the move has been slammed as 'marginalising' the offenders in their community.

The £20,000 advertising campaign by Bedfordshire Police features pictures of those jailed for burglary and robbery offences in the county, in an attempt to make the offenders feel 'less assured'.

The move has been criticised by the Prison Reform Trust but, speaking at the launch of the campaign on June 11, Beds Police Assistant Chief Constable Andrew Richer said: "Seeing pictures of local offenders publicised in this way will make them and their associates feel uncomfortable and less assured."

"But we would rather that than have innocent members of the public feel they have something to fear."

Mark Day, spokesman for the Prison Reform Trust, said: "Naming and shaming people in prison will do little to help their process of rehabilitation and could further marginalise them in their local communities, making it more likely they will be return to crime."

"Having a job and home to go to, getting an education and skills and treatment for drug and alcohol addictions are what work to help people lead a law-abiding life on release.

"At a time when the police and local authorities are facing steep cuts, it is all the more important for people to work together to work effectively with offenders and reduce crime in local communities."

A Bedfordshire Police spokesman said: "To aid those who commit crime we run an Integrated Offender Management programme which offers them the opportunity to discuss the reasons for their offending."

"We work with the offenders and numerous partners to formulate an action plan to try and prevent re-offending and help the individual re-integrate with society."

"Unfortunately, there are a number of criminals who chose not to take this option, reject any form of help and continue to damage the lives of innocent residents with their actions. It is these criminals who are being used in our campaign so that they can realise that their actions have consequences."

The campaign will run on Arriva buses until September.

Have your say on future

WOULD you like to be involved in Luton's future?

If so, a consultation will give you the chance to voice your opinions about proposed plans for the town next week.

The questionnaire, which is going to run from tomorrow until August 3, will replace the existing Local Plan and look as far forward as 2031.

You can take part in the consultation by logging on to www.luton.gov.uk/localplan2031 or collect a hard copy from your local library or council office.

Web-wise council staff

COUNCIL staff have been issued an updated guide on their use of social media networks such as Twitter and Facebook.

The recommendations, due to be discussed in tomorrow's Luton Borough Council Administration Committee meeting, give guidelines on how workers should conduct themselves online and ensure they do not misrepresent themselves or the council.

The report does not apply to councillors as their social media use is governed by the Members' Code of Conduct.

HOPEFULS: From left are the potential new Police and Crime Commissioner – Olly Martins, Bernard Rix and Jas Parmar

Parties pick police commissioner candidates

THE Labour Party have selected their candidate for the Police and Crime Commissioner elections, while the Conservatives have shortlisted two people for the role.

The Bedfordshire Police and Crime Commissioner will replace the county's police authority and take on responsibilities including setting the priorities for the force and holding the Chief Constable to account.

Labour have announced that former councillor and MP assistant Olly Martins was their candidate, while the Conservatives have shortlisted former police officer Jas Parmar and management consultant Bernard Rix, who has worked on policing and community safety.

Hustings meetings are due to be held before the successful Tory candidate is announced.

Union fears police job 'privatisation'

BY KEELEY KNOWLES
editor@lutononsunday.co.uk

SERIOUS concerns have been raised over a proposal to out-source up to 250 police staff jobs in Bedfordshire to a private company.

The local UNISON police staff branch said the transfer of employees to G4S would be a 'short-term gain for long-term pain'.

Sarah Crowe, branch secretary for Bedfordshire, said the union was extremely worried about the recommendation to effectively privatise a number of back-office services.

She added: "The problem is that they are saying it's not a done deal but we get the impression that without a plan B it's a fait accompli."

Last month the proposal to develop a full business case – considered as part of £73 million savings needed across the three forces – was recommended by the chief constables of Bedfordshire, Cambridgeshire and Hertfordshire.

If all three agree – Bedfordshire will decide on Thursday along with Cambridgeshire while Hertfordshire meets tomorrow – a case will be commissioned for outsourcing services through the existing Lincolnshire Police framework with security firm G4S as the supplier.

In April the security firm was awarded a £200m contract running a number of services for Lincolnshire Police.

But a number of concerns have been made about it happening in our area. Mrs Crowe said they feared jobs may be cut to make the savings needed, adding: "There's also the question of accountability with a private company. Should taxpayers be paying a company – that runs for profit – to run public services?

You can't make police officers redundant so it seems police staff are easy pickings."

She also said there could be the potential of staff being moved to a 'central hub' in Lincolnshire.

If it gets the go-ahead G4S would take over running certain services on April 1 next year, potentially affecting more than 1,100 staff over the three forces.

Unison is so concerned it has commissioned an independent consultant to provide an analysis.

A G4S spokeswoman said information about the value of the contract was commercially sensitive, adding: "The suggestion we are 'privatising' the police is simply wrong. G4S has no interest in providing front-line policing – we're here to support police officers not replace them."

"Our expertise comes in providing administration and support services more effectively and at a lower cost."

He scores! Stepan pens hit for Euros

BY CARL MUNGAZI

carl.mungazi@lutonsunday.co.uk

A MUSICIAN has written the score of his life...with a tune about England's Euro 2012 fortunes now getting airtime on popular radio stations.

Stepan Pasicznyk, from Luton, dedicated 'Euro 2012 Song for England' to his Ukrainian father who died of cancer earlier this year.

Mr Pasicznyk's anthemic composition, which has been played on BBC Three Counties and BBC Oxford, among others, is raising money for Cancer Research UK as a way of trying to create something positive out of his tragic loss.

The song, which was released in March, is also available in Ukrainian, Polish, French and Spanish versions.

Years of touring in Europe with bands is responsible for Stepan's multi-lingual skills. He hopes to write the song in even more languages.

Mr Pasicznyk, whose mother is Irish, hopes England fans will be chanting his song in pubs when they take on Italy tonight in the quarter-final.

He said: "I wrote the English language version a few years ago and then thought since I'm fluent in Ukrainian, why not try it in two?"

"It's written in a way that whatever language you sing it in, it sounds like it was written in that language. You could get the five languages it's been done in all sung at the same time and it would run well."

"I've penned a Portuguese one and also got the Swedish one half-written, but since they got knocked out it'll have to wait until the next tournament."

"We still believe that we can win

"So now the time's already here
We live in hope and not in fear
To win or lose, to leave or stay
Will be decided on this day

"Now we must dare to wish for more
As we have got this open door
The biggest game, the joy it brings
To show the world we can be kings

"We still believe that we can win
Even to doubt this is a sin
Already been there we can believe
That we are about to Win again"

Race chief warns of 'untold misery'

BY LAUREN ARCHELL
lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

AN ANTI-RACISM group leader has branded 'discriminatory' the Home Office's decision to change the rules surrounding bringing partners to the UK from outside Europe.

Akbar Dad Khan, 62, chairman of Luton-based Building Bridges, said he is against the new policy, which takes effect from next month, of only those earning at least £18,600 being able to bring in a spouse or partner.

Currently an individual and their settled partner must demonstrate they can cover their living expenses without needing public funding for 27 months.

Mr Khan has previously written to the Home Office to express his concern.

He said: "The Building Bridges organisation promotes citizenship and integration, and as a result will continue to fight the Home Office to prevent them from bringing about these changes. They are discriminatory and unnecessary.

"We do not feel there is any need for a change in the rules as there is no evidence that the present rules are being misused.

"This kind of change will cause untold misery in the lives of the communities affected."

Home Secretary Theresa May said: "We welcome those who wish to make a life in the UK with their family, work hard and make a contribution, but family life must not be established here at the taxpayer's expense.

"To play a full part in British life, family migrants must be able to integrate – they must speak our language and pay their way."

Families urged to claim free school meals

'DON'T miss out' is the message of a new campaign to encourage families to claim free school meals for their children.

A child may be eligible if their parent or guardian receives any benefit, including Income Support, Income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, the Guarantee element of State Pension Credit, Support from the National Asylum Support Service, Child Tax Credit (but not Working Tax Credit) or if they have an income that does not exceed £16,190.

Schools also benefit from increased Government funding when pupils have free school meals, and some universities use the free school meal criteria to allocate scholarships under the National Scholarship Programme Award Scheme.

Grow up... or just go

SIR - It is interesting that Muslim youth worker Mohsin Malik says he is happy to talk to the English Defence League saying 'No one should feel that talking to the EDL you are lowering your values'.

It is also interesting that, paradoxically, the leader of the Labour council, Hazel Simmons, has pointedly refused to speak to the EDL and Liberal Democrat Councillor Martin Pantling appears to agree with the leader.

However like it or not the EDL is not going to go away.

At least Conservative councillor Michael Garrett can see the sense in talking to the EDL.

Cllr Simmons can, metaphorically, place her fingers in her ears and cover her eyes but the problem will still be there.

Her attitude is extremely short-sighted and rather childish.

If as Cllr Simmons says the EDL philosophy is not in keeping with the community and cohesion of the town then there is even more reason to talk with them.

Cllr Pantling also opines that the EDL does not represent the opinions of the majority of people in Luton. Well maybe so but that is only his opinion. He cannot assume to speak for the people of Luton. The problem with these councillors is that they are long past their sell-by date and think their pearls of wisdom are the be-all and end-all.

They should either stop sulking and grow up by talking to the EDL to try and resolve any problems, or make way for unbiased councillors who will.

This is to do with the people of Luton, not these councillors and their own petty fiefdom.

Judy King
Manton Drive, Luton

Open communications

SIR - I would like to thank Cllr Michael Garrett for his comment on the front page of Luton on Sunday, June 17, where he states dialogue should be opened up between the council and the EDL.

He is right in saying that the EDL does get frustrated because nobody speaks to them, and with no dialogue between EDL and Hazel Simmons/Luton Borough Council then obviously this is the case.

Even the Muslim youth worker Mohsin Malik stated he would be happy to talk to the EDL, so a big thumbs-up to him.

The only person who has really made me angry is Hazel Simmons. She blatantly isn't doing her job as a councillor by refusing to meet with the EDL members because their politics are not in keeping with the community of Luton.

It's time that Hazel Simmons resigned... give the job to Cllr Garrett because he can see what needs to be done, unlike Hazel Simmons.

SIR - I am making an appeal to Luton on Sunday readers.

Is there anyone in Luton who went to Barnfield College in New Bedford Road in 1977, with my

Council leaders must talk to the EDL

SIR - I was astonished to read in Luton on Sunday last week that there is no dialogue between Luton Borough Council and the EDL and that the Labour leader of the council will not meet with them.

Surely the council is supposed to represent all local opinion? Or does it only represent those with whom it happens to agree?

Yes, the EDL march had a serious effect on Luton on May 5. I was in town that day and the shops were very quiet.

The funding of the police precautions also meant that St George's Day parades for young people were cancelled, as were St George's Day teas for older people in community centres around the town as staff were called to other duties in the town centre.

But in the event the EDL only attracted 500 marchers and caused little trouble.

Not so 'We are Luton' who attracted marchers from 'as far as Liverpool and Birmingham' (LoS May 6), whose group numbered around 1,000, and who caused an incident when 50 marchers tried to leave the agreed route and needed to be corralled by the police.

The We Are Luton group marched under a sea of Socialist Worker banners (front page LoS

The EDL march on May 5

May 6), in the midst of which were our two local Members of Parliament, one with a Unite Union banner.

Presumably the leader of the council is happy to meet with them as they are of her political persuasion.

How can she say 'We do not meet with the EDL because their politics and thinking are not in keeping with the community and cohesion of this town'?

Some people in this town are of the EDL persuasion and they have the right to be represented, to be consulted and to be heard.

I personally would not share their persuasion but I would defend their right to be heard.

Perhaps if the leader of the council had dealt more fairly with all local residents, we would not have these continuing demonstrations at a great cost to us all.

One can only think that the risk assessment for any other demonstration planned will require greater defence resources now we have invited the far left from across the country to march against the EDL in our town.

It is not for crowd-swellers from Liverpool and Birmingham to defend Lutonians.

We have our own elected representatives to do that and when it comes to local elections in 2015 we need to think very carefully who actually has the best interests of this town at heart.

Police cuts are crazy

SIR - I was suprised to see a potential Tory Police Commissioner candidate moaning about the loss of the Henlow Police helicopter as reported by Luton on Sunday.

Does he not know that this is a direct result of the 20 per cent budget cuts his Tory/Lib Dem Government is inflicting on our police? You also report online the loss of Bedfordshire's police dogs, again due to the Tories' 20 per cent budget cuts.

It would be more useful for Tory candidates to tell this out-of-touch Government to stop these damaging cuts, rather than having their photograph taken next to the very things being cut.

Under Labour, police numbers increased and crime fell by 43 per cent. That's why I say we need to cut crime, not the police.

Rename Dallow Road

SIR - I use Dallow Road a lot. I used to live in this area and still visit it on a regular basis, as members of my family still live there.

I am also old enough to remember the days when Dallow Road was a dead end.

I also recall how when the top end of the road was linked to Hatters Way, that we were told this would let the traffic 'out'.

Every time work on the busway closes Hatters Way, the traffic that would have used Hatters Way uses Dallow Road.

This is not just the cars and lorries, but also buses. This is despite there being a road called Dunstable Road that goes from the centre of Luton to the boundary with Dunstable.

I think we should rename Dallow Road to reflect this new status.

We could perhaps rename the current, but out of fashion, Dunstable Road, the Old Dunstable Road, and rename Dallow Road, the New Dunstable Road, in the same fashion as the Bedford roads.

As an alternative we could at least list Dallow Road as the A505 Relief Road Relief Road.

Hopefully as part of this new status, we might see a greater regard for those who live in and visit Dallow Road.

I am always cheered when someone driving along Dallow Road during these closures does not look at me as though I have two heads, just because I want to back into a driveway or join the queue of almost stationary traffic - a particular specialism of bus drivers.

In conclusion, I think renaming Dallow Road would provide a lasting legacy for the busway, one that I would expect to still be in place when that particular white elephant has ceased to run and the grass has grown over it.

Mind you, we will still probably be paying for it.

Praising qualifications

SIR - Wednesday marked the fifth annual Vocational Qualifications Day.

As someone who came into the construction industry having taken vocational qualifications and has had a successful and rewarding career, I thought I would take the opportunity to sing their praises.

Vocational qualifications are becoming more and more important for people who want to work in construction.

Diploma courses and NVQs help develop the sophisticated skills they need and give hands on experience that will stand them in good stead throughout their careers.

With high quality tutors and trainers, construction vocational qualifications are on a par with any academic qualification.

As a CITB-ConstructionSkills Construction Ambassador, I would encourage more young people to consider construction as a career and to look at vocational options available to them. The support you receive and the skills you gain are second to none and will open doors into an industry that is vital to the success of the economy.

EDL talks urged

■ I hope she decides to! How can the leader of a town council refuse to speak to the people of the town? Luton is a town like not many because of its huge diversity in cultures and communities and needs some one representing it that can not only promote cohesion, but deal with the problems that may arise regarding these cultural differences that Luton obviously has!

I hope they do manage to have a conversation!

My custom is now lost

SIR - I just popped into WH Smith to get a Health Lottery ticket. While I was waiting, I checked out the scratchcards.

Then the checkout girl asked me if I wanted any chocolate. I asked her why she was doing the hard sell. I told her my teeth are bad, and my belly is about to go pop, from eating too much chocolate.

She said that all I had to say was no. How many people are too polite to say no?

By this time, I had forgotten my £5 scratchcard. She lost that sale.

I am a big boy now. If I want to buy a bar of chocolate, I don't need the help of a pushy checkout girl. I won't shop there any more.

University boffins to pioneer mobile 3D TV

BY CARL MUNGAZI

carl.mungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

A UNIVERSITY of Bedfordshire team is at the forefront of cutting-edge research that could lead to 3D TV on smart phones in the future.

New research unveiled at an international technology conference held by the university jointly with colleagues in Manchester suggested that people could soon be able to watch football in 3D while on the train or anywhere else in the world. The conference was attended by up to 70 delegates from across the globe and also featured research that looked in to the possibility of doctors monitoring patients at home via their mobile phones.

Professor Ben Allen, head of the University of Bedfordshire's Centre for Wireless Research, said:

"There was some groundbreaking research revealed at the conference that would enable mobile phones to have 3D TV.

"The work at this university on cognitive radio would help mobile phone networks provide new services, such as 3D TV, while being more energy efficient and secure.

"There is a lot of work on cognitive radio that would help do that, which was revealed at the conference.

Some phones already have good enough screens for 3D TV.

"This work on getting mobiles to work better on the body would enable hospitals to monitor patients' blood sugar levels, for example.

"They could have a device on their body that would transmit to their mobile and feed that back to the hospital. In a time of over-crowding at hospitals this could help free up space."

Let the games begin this year's Love Luton festival

THE Love Luton 2012 Festival kicks off with a London 2012 inspired event next month when more than 1,000 young people take part in the Bedfordshire School Summer Games.

Children aged from eight to 15 years will be competing in sports including golf, rounders, tennis, Kwik cricket, athletics, indoor rowing, cheerleading and gymnastics on Friday, July 6.

Most of the events take place at Luton Regional Sports Centre from 10am-3.30pm, with others at Stockwood Park athletics track and golf centre. Teams will each represent a school or area.

Street dancers from Icknield High School and singers Latia Corbin and Shardaine Seaton from Lea Manor High School will be performing at the opening ceremony.

The special guest is Danny Crates, Paralympic gold medalist at Athens in 2004, who also carried the flag for Great Britain at the Beijing opening ceremony.

The Summer School Games have been organised by Team Beds & Luton, the county sports partnership which aims to increase participation in sport.

THERE is an old saying that if you like something, it is either bad for you or makes you fat.

This is obviously the brief that all university research departments are given.

This week there were two more gems from our academic ivory towers.

The first is that male heavy tea drinkers are more likely to get prostate cancer. The researchers themselves do not know why this is.

It might be simply that heavy tea drinkers live longer, or that the research is not wide enough, or that many tea drinkers are likely to have other bad habits.

There appears to be no connection between tea and prostate cancer.

So why tell us then. Again, either to show the researchers are busy or to scare all tea drinkers half to death.

As in all other things, I am a moderate tea drinker, so am not personally worried – well not much.

But can they not reach some conclusions as to why before throwing these somewhat alarming statements out to us all.

After all it must be the case that all men who wear patterned socks must be more – or less – likely to suffer from prostate cancer.

This week we are also being

Now it's time to pour away your tea and hang up your phone told that smart phones are harming us.

This time it's not the rays they emit, or the messages they carry but the way we carry them around all the time, leave them on all the time and read them in unfamiliar places, like the lavatory.

Incidentally, one of the most common forms of damage to a mobile is it being dropped into a lavatory, so their evidence is probably right on that point.

So the answer seems to be to turn off the smart phone at the end of the working day, along with the light and the computer. As if that's going to happen. It's almost as if people sitting in research departments want to warn us against living, as it could be bad for us.

We even have advertisements on the TV warning us that the gentle cough we emit might be because we have lung cancer.

Very cheery.

And what should we do? See our doctor.

I know people who have suffered lung cancer and died from it and they had trouble seeing their doctor, who, on two occasions misdiagnosed the illness.

So I am not sure what use it would be, if we all turned up with our summer colds and hay fever to ask them to check if we have cancer.

The first thing they'll want to know is how much tea we drink.

I can see our society now, where we all cycle into work for a 10 o'clock start, the company provides fresh juice and vegetarian snacks, where the only questions managers are allowed to ask is how we are feeling today, and we cycle home at 4pm, before sitting in our garden talking to the flowers with a small glass of rose-hip syrup, ensuring all electrical devices are turned off until morning.

We might not live any longer but it will certainly feel like it.

The Government has taken a big bite out of our budget

Hatter boy, Olly!

CHART-TOPPING pop star Olly Murs will be performing as part of the Love Luton 2012 Festival on Saturday, July 7.

Luton On Sunday managed to grab an exclusive interview with the man himself to ask whether he'd be wearing a pair of those famous tight trousers...

Q: Have you ever been to Luton?
If not, are you excited about coming and what are you looking forward to the most?

A: I have never been to Luton no, only driven through it on my many trips up north. I am really excited to be coming there though. I love performing at places I haven't been to and seeing new fans.

Q: The Love Luton 2012 Festival is the biggest event happening this weekend nationwide – is it exciting to be part of such a big event?

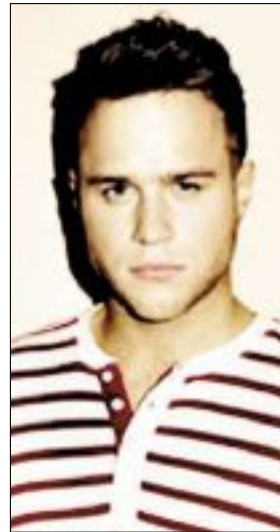

A: Yes it's great. I'm keeping my fingers crossed that the sun comes out for it though.

Q: You have been reported in the press this week about hoping to find a girlfriend while you are on tour – will you be on the look-out while you are in Luton?

A: Haha – I am always on the look-out.

Q: You are a huge football fan and played semi-professionally – have you seen Luton Town play?

A: I don't think so actually. I used to play for Witham Town in Essex – and yes I am a massive football fan so would definitely love to see Luton's local team play.

Q: Is this your biggest headline gig to date?

A: I have got lots of big headline gigs this summer actually – so I'm grateful that people have bought tickets to come and see me live this summer around the country.

I have my big nine-piece live band with me so I am really looking forward to putting on a good show. I hope everyone enjoys it.

Q: Will you be wearing any special 'Love Luton'-style hats or tight trousers?

A: Haha – I am sure both will be making an appearance.

Q: How did you cope with your rise to fame?

A: I cope really well with it I think. The hardest thing is not seeing your friends and family when you want because my schedule is so busy – but I wouldn't change it.

I am very lucky I get to do what I do every day, and long may it continue.

Q: Do you think that coming second in X Factor has been better for your career than coming first?

A: I suppose I will never know – Simon still wanted to sign me when I came runner-up so it may not have been different, but I do think that coming second has given me my drive and ambition to succeed which have definitely done me good.

Q: Who are your musical heroes? Who would you like to meet most?

A: I have many musical heroes. Legends like Stevie Wonder, Michael Jackson and James Brown have inspired me from a young age, and more modern icons like Justin Timberlake, Robbie Williams and Michael Buble. I would love to meet Stevie Wonder one day though.

Q: What was it like singing with Robbie Williams?

A: It was amazing. Robbie has become a good mate of mine – we clicked instantly, and he's given me some great career advice along the way. I am so pleased I got the chance to perform with him on the X Factor.

Library is booking

ST GEORGE'S Square is home to a building that is celebrating its 50th birthday this year.

For five decades, Luton Central Library has provided the residents of the town with access to information from books, newspapers and magazines – and more recently to the internet and e-books.

But how did this impressive building come to be here?

Jane Humm, children and young people services manager at the library, said the vision for the building came from Frank Gardner, who was the borough librarian between 1938 and 1962.

Jane explained: "Luton was already home to a beautiful library which was situated where Jimmy's World Grill is now.

"The library had been opened in 1908, thanks to funding from Andrew Carnegie, a Scottish industrialist who spent much of his fortune building libraries throughout the UK.

"The facility was incredibly popular, with staff having to work from 11am to 9pm on most days just to meet the demand.

"Frank, in his position as borough librarian, recognised that the building was too small and made it his mission for Luton to have a bigger library."

In 1958, Luton Borough Council agreed that there was a need for a larger facility, but a suitable site and funding had to be found.

Even when the site in St George's Square had been picked, a culvert had to be constructed for the River Lea to go through, so the library could be built on the top of it.

While the work was going on

Frank travelled across the country sourcing the latest technologies and modern furnishings, keen to make the facility as state-of-the-art as possible.

Eventually in 1962, the Luton Central Library was officially opened to the public.

An immediate success, visitors had access not only to books, newspapers and magazines, but also a sound and vision library full of vinyl records and gramophones, and Luton Library Theatre.

In November 1962, the Queen came on an official visit to the library and was taken on a tour of the building by Frank.

Jane said: "I'm sure this is a day that many Lutonians remember and still talk about today. People came from all over to try and catch a glimpse of the Queen and Prince Philip on her visit."

Luton Central Library has always tried to keep up with technology and a number of refurbishments have taken place to ensure that the facility is up to date.

The first took place in 1998, thanks to funding from the Dom Wolfson Public Libraries a place in history...

Challenge Fund, as well as Luton Borough Council and Vauxhall.

The money enabled the first IT suite to be installed, allowing users access to the internet at a time when many did not have a computer in their homes.

In 2009, the library was awarded £1.24million in lottery funding, which went towards installing further computers and self-scanning facilities, so visitors could take books out without the help of a librarian.

More recently, the library has added e-books, meaning visitors can loan out virtual books to their e-readers to browse at home.

Jane said: There has always been some opposition to using technology in the library and some people think a library should be for books, and books only.

"But I think the role of the library has to be to allow our users access to information, whether that be via the internet, a newspaper or a book."

She added that the role of the librarian had also changed, saying: "People probably still think of librarians as a strict lady in tweed, with a bun in her hair and glasses, telling people to be quiet – but it isn't like that."

"Although the self-service machines mean we aren't needed to loan out books, it does mean we can be out on the floor answering any queries that our visitors may have.

"We can go out into the community and let people know what services we provide, which include initiatives to get children reading, and CV workshops for jobseekers."

As the official birthday of the library approaches, there will be a number of events to mark the occasion.

Jane said: "We'll have exhibitions in the library showing the most popular books over the last 50 years, we'll have popular authors who will be coming in to hold a crime writing workshop, and poet John Hegley has written a poem to celebrate the birthday."

"A full programme of events will be published in the coming weeks and all information will be on our www.lutonculture.co.uk website."

Asked whether the library was still needed, Jane said: "It's so important that we are still here to encourage the next generation to read as there are so many distractions nowadays."

"Despite all the technology, which is fantastic, there is nothing quite like a book. There is nothing quite like the smell or touch of a book, or getting lost in a good story."

Happy Birthday Luton Central Library, and here's to the next 50 years.

21 Years of Educational Excellence

We have been bowled over by the numbers of past pupils and their families joining our birthday celebrations on the 24th June. It is going to be a great day with friends and families spanning the twenty-one years of Orchard. Those early days seem a long way off though the ethos and philosophy that was at the heart of Orchard then are still at the core of our culture of care and education today.

In the ensuing 21 years we have developed into a well-respected independent preparatory school providing education and care to children. We are lucky at Orchard to have long associations with our families as some children join us as babies and continue until nine plus. Taking the next big step, which involves sitting entrance assessments, both academic and social, could be seen as particularly challenging for pupils from a small school but that is not the case. Rising to a challenge and cultivating a 'have a go attitude' is an integral part of our character here at Orchard. The success of our alumni is quite amazing and we hope to share some of their accomplishments with you shortly on our website.

Orchard began as a small nursery where a favourite daily activity was to set off from our then premises in Old Road to explore the local nature reserve and all the magical opportunities it presented. Muddy feet and rosy cheeks were a feature on our return when we sat down together for our afternoon tea. Our move to Sharpenhoe Road made our walks more of a trudge but the outdoors continued to play a large part in the lives of our nursery children.

The opening of the baby nursery in 1996 definitely had a positive impact on the family of Orchard and as an ex Health Visitor I should not have been surprised by how many of our youngest pupils enjoyed the company of each other and thrived in the intimate surroundings.

Slowly but surely Orchard built a reputation for its nursery education focusing on social and emotional skills that encompass old fashioned principles of good manners, thought for others, politeness and respect for oneself and adults. We find the self-discipline needed to master these attributes creates the pathway to education and learning for our nursery children in preparation for the rigours and demands of school life.

Temporary, Contract and Permanent recruitment within the Industrial, Commercial and Driving sectors.

The sound nursery education provided at Orchard became the bedrock on which the school formed in 2001. The solid foundation provides a springboard for our children entering our reception class who can really 'hit the ground running' with an eagerness to learn.

2009 saw Orchard raise the bar again when we opened a year three class and in 2010 a year four class. What a good move this has proved to be, the progress achieved by year two is consolidated, strengthened and enhanced in these two final years. It is easy to list the academic achievements of our pupils but what is more pleasing is that it has not been at the expense of their social and personal qualities.

We foresee the next 21 years as equally successful especially if we have the continuing support of our parents whose enthusiasm and amazing energies truly embrace the sense of community at the heart of Orchard. We also hope that our staff, who are passionate about the care and education they deliver, continue to share their excellent practice with the next generation of teachers at Orchard.

We hope for good weather and a fun day, which would not be possible without the hard work, help and dedication of our pupils, parents, staff and friends of Orchard School and Nursery.

Thank you

Anne Burton

Intrepid Simon will go it alone

A CYSTIC fibrosis sufferer is being forced to undertake a 1,000-mile bike ride all on his own – after a mix-up with the travel arrangements.

Simon Stothard, of Langdale Road, Dunstable, had been expecting to complete the gruelling trek on two wheels from John O'Groats to Lands End as a part of a team of six to raise money for charity.

But he found out on Wednesday there were problems with the minibus that had been booked and he was unable to acquire one at short notice.

The journey, which is the whole length of Great Britain, takes most cyclists between ten and 14 days to complete, but Simon is trying to do it in nine.

All sponsorship money will go to the Cystic Fibrosis Trust to help other sufferers of the disease, which is the result of a defective gene which clogs the lungs and digestive system with thick mucus, resulting in chronic infections and difficulty digesting food.

Speaking before he started the journey on Friday,

TENACIOUS:
Simon Stothard

Simon, 29, said: "We found out earlier this week there had been a mess-up with the travel arrangements. Others have had to drop out, but I couldn't let the people down that have sponsored me."

"My best friend, Nick Munn, found a small van for us to hire, so it'll just be me cycling the course with Nick driving the support vehicle."

"A daunting task has become even more daunting. But training for the bike ride has gone extremely well, and I've completed three half marathons, two duathlons, a 10km run and a 5km in preparation."

"I'm at the peak of my fitness and feel ready for the ride. Support has been incredible and we've raised nearly £3,000 in sponsorship for the Cystic Fibrosis Trust."

If you wish to donate money to Simon visit www.justgiving.com/endtostothard or search '2012 for Cystic Fibrosis' on Facebook.

Individual and unique

KING'S House Preparatory School and Nursery is a homely place where our children arrive smiling each morning and leave smiling every afternoon.

King's House, while being a new concept, is in fact run by the Principal and Nursery Headteacher of the now disbanded Moorlands Independent School, ably supported by many of its former Governors, pupils, parents and staff. It is our aim to ensure that all our pupils achieve not only high academic standards but also exemplary standards of behaviour, manners and social skills.

Under the guidance of new principal Dr Andrew Cook, we strive to nurture every single one of our pupils so that they can grow in confidence and develop a lifelong thirst for learning and academic achievement.

Children join our nursery at 2 or 3 years of age where we pursue a carefully planned curriculum which enables children to explore their world and surroundings.

Our classes are small with a maximum of 8 children per class on admission to the Nursery and a maximum of only 16 pupils per class in the school as a whole.

In the Foundation Stage of the curriculum (2-5 years), the pupils are given a broad and exciting introduction to many areas of learning. Mathematics and English are at the heart of our curriculum. The ability to read is at the cornerstone of a child's education.

From this flows all other aspects of learning: writing, grammar, spelling, problem solving and general knowledge, which in turn connects to all other areas of the curriculum, such as science, languages, humanities, the arts and sport.

Every child is unique with their own personality and because we are small we are able to recognise and nurture every child's uniqueness, helping them to achieve their maximum potential. Our school is also a community where all parents are encouraged to work closely with the school in terms of their child's education.

By creating a partnership between teachers and parents, pupils gain in confidence and initiative, strive to work hard, learn to think independently and gain from the satisfaction which comes from their achievements and success.

At King's House School, we set ourselves the highest of standards and monitor each child's progress from day one.

We pride ourselves on our team of dedicated teachers and assistants who understand the children they teach and work to stretch them while at the same time helping them to strive for the best they can achieve.

The school is a selective one and believes that selection is one of the key reasons why private fee-paying schools succeed as they do in delivering high standards of academic achievement, discipline and all round success.

No foot on jobs ladder

DESPITE national headlines of unemployment going down, it appears Luton is not seeing any improvement.

Statistics released on Thursday show that in the last year, the number of 18 to 24-year-olds claiming Job-Seeker's Allowance (JSA) has increased by 20 per cent. The category for those aged 50 and over have seen a 13 per cent increase over the same period of time.

Luton South Labour MP Gavin Shuker said: "The national statistics which the Tory Government is sending out are skewed.

"The figures include previous full-timers now taking on part time work as well as temporary agency staff who have no real job security.

"We now have around 6,500 people in Luton who are claiming JSA. This shows that here in Luton, this Tory-Lib Dem Government's plan is not working – especially for young people leaving full time education. I'm really concerned that Tory plans will result in a lost generation of people who are unable to get a foot on the job ladder.

"The Government should stop hiding behind false statistics and rethink their plans for jobs and growth. What we need now is real change."

A council spokesman said: "Our Integrated Youth Service delivers a range of initiatives to support young people and in particular those who are 'not in education, employment or training'.

CONCERN: Luton South Labour MP Gavin Shuker

Firm offers help over redundancy trauma

EMPLOYERS and their staff are being offered a new support service aimed at preparing people for new careers or starting their own business after redundancy.

The Consultancy Home Counties, an employment and skills development company, will be running the free Skills Support for Redundancy programme which will offer advice and retraining opportunities.

Financial backing for the initiative will come from the Government's Skills Funding Agency and the European Social Fund.

Dale Morgan, chief executive for the firm, said: "Redundancy is a very stressful time for both staff and their employers. For companies, the costs of redundancy can be substantial, while small business owners in particular can find the process very traumatic."

Mugger grabbed victim's mobile

A MAN was grabbed around the neck as a gang tried to rob him.

The 32-year-old victim was walking through the underpass in Telford Way when he was approached by a group of four or five Asian men.

One of the group stopped to tie up his shoelaces, but as the victim walked past another grabbed him around the neck.

The man who was tying his shoelaces then approached the victim and demanded that he handed over his mobile phone and cash.

The victim was then searched, but as this was taking place a member of the public disturbed the gang who fled the area.

The first offender is described as being Asian, in his mid-20s, of medium build, around 5ft 5ins, with short black hair and wearing a grey top with white jogging bottoms.

The victim did not get a clear look at the second man who grabbed him from behind.

If you have information relating to this incident, contact Detective Constable Surfaz Hussain, in confidence, on 01582 473330.

Irish celebrate past

LUTON Irish Forum will be hosting a celebratory exhibition next month about the contribution Irish immigrants have made to town since settling in the 1940s.

'Catching the Boat' will be held at The Greenhouse, Stockwood Park and will be opened by Labour peer Lord William McKenzie of Luton. There will be performances by international storyteller Kate Corkery and schoolchildren. It will also include live Irish music from the Emerald Pipe Band, picnics as well as a float representing the TSS Princess Maud, an Irish ship sunk by a German U-boat in 1918.

Irish immigrants settled in Luton during the 1940, 50s and 60s, and worked in a variety of occupations, from bus conductors to nurses.

A selection of memorabilia from this period will be on display for visitors.

Entry to the exhibition is free and it will run from Saturday, July 7 to Sunday, July 15.

LIMELIGHT: Carla Small made a big impression on the Graham Norton show

Carla's TV role is chair-raising

A BIOMEDICAL sciences student from the University of Bedfordshire was flipped from the famous red chair on the Graham Norton show.

Carla Small, 20, only managed a couple of seconds in the seat after telling Norton and his guests she once fell in a volcano.

She said: "It was really interesting to see how one of my favourite shows was put together – and even better to be a part of it."

Man, 32, had nose smashed

A MAN was left with a broken nose following an attempted street robbery.

The 32-year-old victim was walking across the Library Gap area of Library Road, Luton, at around 12.15am on Sunday when he was approached by a white man who ran up behind him and asked for money.

When the victim said he didn't have any, the man punched him in the face and then ran off towards Luton Railway Station.

The victim – who has been left extremely shaken and upset by the incident – suffered a broken nose as a result of the attack and is currently undergoing further medical treatment for his injury.

WHAT'S ON

FILM SEASON

The Alban Arena, St Albans

Tuesday and Wednesday, various times.

ANOTHER great week of film at The Alban Arena begins with Albert Nobbs (15) on Tuesday at 5pm and Wednesday at 1.30pm. Albert Nobbs struggles to survive in late 19th century Ireland, where women aren't encouraged to be independent.

Posing as a man, so she can work as a butler in Dublin's poshest hotel, Albert meets a handsome painter and looks to escape the lie she has been living.

Following this is Moonrise Kingdom (12A) starring Bruce Willis on Tuesday at 8pm and Wednesday at 5pm.

Set on an island off the coast of New England in the 1960s, as a young boy and girl fall in love they are moved to run away together.

Various factions of the town mobilise to search for them and the town is turned upside down - which might not be such a bad thing.

How I Spent My Summer Vacation (15) screens on Wednesday at 8pm.

Apprehended by the Mexican authorities, Driver (Mel Gibson) is sent to a hard-core prison where he enters the strange and dangerous world of 'El Pueblito'.

Not an easy place for an outsider, unless it's with the help of someone who knows the ropes - a ten-year-old.

Tickets for films matinees are £5 and for evenings are £7 or £5 for concessions.

To book, call the box office on 01727 844488 or visit www.alban-arena.co.uk

Chris Packham

Secrets of Our Living Planet

BBC2, 8pm

Last week, Chris Packham started presenting this four-part documentary series that aims to highlight some of the planet's most diverse ecosystems. This time, Packham's environment couldn't be more different, because he's swapping lush vegetation for the world's plains. But there's plenty going on here, as he reveals. For a start, white rhinos create essential nitrogen hotspots in Kenya, rat kangaroos control the Australian outback's ecosystem, and fruit-eating maned wolves are crucial to the survival of the Brazilian Cerrado.

IT AIN'T HALF OCT

The Octavia is a hard car to pigeonhole, given the way it straddles the Focus-sized family hatchback and Mondeo-sized medium range sectors - but then that could be exactly what many buyers are looking for. If you prioritise style and design innovation, this probably isn't the car for you, even in this improved guise, but on more practical criteria like build quality, equipment, space and price, there isn't a lot that beats it.

These days, there's a lovely sense of inverted snobbery to Skoda ownership. Why on earth, owners wonder, would people pay thousands more to get a smaller version of exactly the same thing just because it has a Volkswagen, an Audi or even a SEAT badge? If you don't believe in sacrificing value for money at the altar of brand equity, the Octavia could very well represent the perfect set of wheels.

Swann replaces Kettleborough

CRICKET

BEDFORDSHIRE have been forced to make a late change for today's Minor Counties Championship match against Suffolk at Bury St Edmunds with Oliver Swann coming in for James Kettleborough.

The batsman was Bedfordshire's leading run-getter last season and he was hoping to make the breakthrough into first-class cricket with Middlesex this summer.

But his chances have been limited at the Lord's based county and he has decided to take up an offer from Northamptonshire where he made an immediate impact on Tuesday with a century for the second 11 against Lancashire seconds. This has put him on standby for first team duty so Bedfordshire have had to change their plans.

With Rob Keogh also figuring for Northamptonshire recently, the obvious replacement was Swann. Like Kettleborough, he is only 19 but he has played several times for Bedfordshire with much success over the last couple of seasons and would probably have been a regular this year but for an injury suffered playing hockey. Swann, though, will probably bat in the middle order with George Thurstance or Dan Bendon moving up to open with Steve Stubbings.

Despite the abundance of talent it has been the batting which has let down the county of late so occupying the crease has to become the priority.

It is nearly two seasons since Bedfordshire last batted the allocated 90 overs in the first innings with too many people throwing away their wickets with flamboyant and unnecessary shots.

The bowling attack looks strong, especially since the return of Martin Weightman who looks a yard quicker than last season and would appear to be the ideal new ball partner for the ever-dangerous Andy McGarry.

Lutonian in the hunt

LUTONIAN head to Southill Park today aiming to continue their recent good form in the Bedfordshire County Cricket League Premier Division that saw them hand local rivals Luton Town & Indians their first defeat of the season last week.

Asif Hussain and captain Asif Khan starred with the bat for the side, while Mohammed Irshad's five wicket haul ensured that they took the bragging rights over an Indians team that had been unbeaten in their first six games of the season.

The visitors had been made to bat first and had slumped to 78-3 before Hussain and Khan came together, putting on a fourth wicket partnership of 76 to help steer Lutonians towards a total of 210-6 from their 45 overs.

Irshad's 5-39 then rattled Indians and they eventually tumbled to 126 all out, suffering their first defeat of the season in the process. The win also meant that Lutonians moved up to fourth in the table.

As for Luton Town, they will be aiming to get back to winning ways when they face Flitwick at Wardown Park this afternoon.

Dunstable Town, currently in third, will try to close the 30-point gap on the league leaders when they head to the Premier Division's bottom side Ickwell.

They recorded an impressive nine-wicket win away to Leighton Buzzard Town in last week's game, thanks in part to a big opening stand from Mahesh Bhutiya (84 not out) and Matthew Custance (62).

Scott's got great promotion drive

BY MARC BAZELEY

marc.bazeley@lutononsunday.com

SCOTT Rendell hopes that Luton Town can emulate the likes of Stevenage and Crawley Town by not just achieving promotion from the Blue Square Bet Premier this season, but also pushing on when they reach the Football League.

The prolific striker joined the Hatters earlier this week from Wycombe Wanderers, re-uniting with manager Paul Buckle who he played under during separate loan spells with Torquay United and Bristol Rovers.

Rendell is now aiming to help fire Luton back into the Football League and has been impressed with the ambition of the club. However, he will not be satisfied to simply win promotion to League Two.

"If you look at the likes of Stevenage and Crawley Town, they have gone on and got back-to-back promotions," said the 25-year-old. "If any team has got that sort of set-up in place then you know it is possible.

"It shows that you can do it and hopefully Luton will be the next team to be able to do that.

"The Conference was a good standard when I was last playing in it, although I was a lot younger then. With Stevenage and Crawley doing well after going up – and I think Fleetwood Town will do well this year – then it shows that the gap between the Conference and League Two is closing."

Rendell admitted that he would have liked to have stayed with a Football League team, but had no problem returning to the Conference with Luton as he feels that they are on course to finally win promotion after coming agonisingly close in the past three seasons.

His decision to move to Kenilworth Road, despite having a year left on his contract at Wycombe, was also influenced by the chance to work with Town boss Buckle again after enjoying his previous spells under him.

Rendell said: "I've known Bucks for a couple of years and we have a good working relationship, as well as getting on well off the field. I kept in touch with him last season at Bristol Rovers and when he was out of work.

"He's a good manager, a good tactician and he likes to play attacking football, which as a striker I like to do as well. I think his style of football suits me.

"Ever since the manager took over last season you can see they have been doing well and I can't see Luton still being in this league beyond next season."

Reynolds can't wait to avenge bronze blow

BOXING

JORDAN Reynolds plans to build on the bronze he won at the GB Youth Three Nations last weekend by dropping down a weight for the upcoming CYPSS Championships.

The 16-year-old's first taste of international action, representing England, saw him boxing at light middleweight but he was beaten 19-8 by Wales number one Aled Cook and he conceded that it was a size mismatch.

"It was a great experience but 69kgs was too big for me," Reynolds said. "They were 10 times bigger than me and I just didn't perform on the day. In the next championships I'll be doing 64kgs, which is my weight. I'm big and strong at that so it should all go to plan.

"I suppose being a Great Britain Three Nations medalist is not bad for only boxing for a year or so. People dream to do what I've done so far. There's more to come."

ES out to bounce back

MOTORSPORT

TEAM ES Racing will be aiming to put their difficult weekend at Oulton Park behind them when they return to action in the latest rounds of the British Touring Car Championship at Croft today.

Both of the Luton-based team's drivers, Dave Newsham and Chris James, suffered with brake failures in the opening race at the Cheshire circuit, with James walking away unscathed after that caused him to have a huge crash. Newsham, who had been amongst the championship front-runners, did manage a top ten finish in race two, but was later forced to retire in the third race. Meanwhile, James had to settle for two 13th places after the ES Racing mechanics managed to rebuild his car.

Those retirements saw Newsham drop down to eighth in both the overall independent and drivers' standings, and with several others around him in the championship also struggling that weekend he was left to rue it as a lost opportunity.

With this also being the penultimate round before the six-week summer break, both drivers will be keen to make the most of their last chance to pick up some points ahead of the second half of the season, which gets underway in August.

Goal-line technology now needed, says FA chief Stroud

FOOTBALL

BEDFORDSHIRE Football Association chief executive Keith Stroud has backed calls to introduce goal-line technology after the latest high profile blunder saw FIFA boss Sepp Blatter admit it was now a "necessity", writes James Cunliffe.

England prepare to take on Italy in the European Championship quarter final tonight having been the beneficiary of a controversial goal gaffe in their previous game against Ukraine.

Marko Devic's shot clearly crossed the line before it was cleared by Three Lions defender John Terry, while the much-maligned additional assistant referee (AAR) had a clear view of the incident but remained motionless.

Following the mistake Blatter posted on Twitter: "After last night's match GLT is no longer an alternative but a necessity."

While some will reconcile it as karma after Frank Lampard was denied a legitimate goal against the Germans in the 2010 World Cup, there have been similar incidents like in last season's FA Cup semi-final between Chelsea and Tottenham, and back in 2009 when Spurs' Pedro Mendes was denied a winner against Manchester United at Old Trafford.

Stroud, who is also a current National List referee and has trialled the equipment that would be used, believes that the sooner any uncertainty is removed the better.

"Football is a business now and there is lots of money at stake," he said, adding: "The debate on goal-line technology had been raging for a number of years now and the introduction of this assistance is definitely required.

"Officials at the top level are crying out for help in this one area. As we have seen from a recent match in the Euros, the human eye is not 100 per cent reliable and never will be with the speed of incidents as they happen.

"If FIFA and UEFA are now going to utilise this technology it will only be good for the game."

On the use of AARs, which have been trialled at club level European competition and now the current championships in Poland and Ukraine, Stroud said: "Following the introduction of the fifth and sixth official, there has been some excellent examples where having this extra help has assisted in the correct decision being made. But there has also been other incidents where clearly an error of judgement has caused the decision to be incorrect. Football is all about opinions, so no matter whether we have four or six officials there will always be an element of incorrect judgement. Has it worked? Only the referee teams on the day and the competitions will know."

However, while a supporter of technological assistance, the county football chief admits that any advances must stop with goal-line incidents, which would have been little help to Luton Town.

A boyhood Hatters fan, Stroud was at Wembley last month as they lost 2-1 to York City in the Blue Square Bet Premier play-off final to a controversial Matty Blair goal which replays confirmed should have been disallowed for a clear offside. It was not spotted and the FA boss concedes that such incidents would not be covered by goal-line technology.

He said: "It's one of those things that was down to human error. I'm a Luton fan and I was frustrated with it, but that's football.

"You see it every week where a referee, an assistant or a player makes a mistake and I wouldn't want to take that out of the game.

"It should stop at goal-line decisions.

"People ask me that sort of question and I always say to them that when you're in the pub on a Saturday night with your friends, or at work on a Monday morning, you discuss all the decisions that went on at the weekend – some right, some wrong.

"But if it's made so clinical that a referee looks at a TV and gets it right every time, it takes away the conversation.

"It's great to have debate. That's our game and I don't think we should change that."

I want to be Hatters hero

Prolific hitman Shaw wants to make history as Luton goalscoring legend

BY JAMES CUNLIFFE

james.cunliffe@lutononsunday.com

JON Shaw wants to write his own chapter in the Luton Town history books after sealing a two-year deal to come to Kenilworth Road.

The striker was the fourth signing of a remarkable week in which manager Paul Buckle made a huge statement of intent by tempting Football League players Ronnie Henry, Danny Spiller and Scott Rendell to join to the club.

But the boss admitted that Shaw, who bagged 35 goals for Gateshead last term, was his number one target, while the forward revealed he'd opted for the Hatters over a host of Football League clubs.

And the 28-year-old is determined to give fans – who have previously idolised the likes of Mick Harford and Steve Howard – a new goalscoring hero to sing about.

He said: "When I met and spoke with Paul Buckle and [managing director] Gary Sweet we had a conversation about the history of the club and the great strikers they've had down the years.

"It's not about emulating or becoming like these players – I've come here to write my own history.

"Luton is a massive club which deserves success, and I want to be the player that gives the fans that. I want to be a hero, I want to be a player that the fans look up to, like legends like Mick Harford."

Buckle is not the only Luton manager to have coveted his services. A bid for Shaw was rejected last term, while the striker revealed that he tried to push through a switch but was denied.

"It's been a long time coming and I just can't wait to get started," said Shaw, adding: "At the start of last season [former boss] Gary Brabin and Gary Sweet made approaches to Gateshead and they flatly refused. I did, at one point, ask for permission to speak to Luton but they wouldn't let me.

"That was fine, I appreciated they wanted me to stay and see out my contract.

"That's what happened and I had a good season and at the end of it Luton were still interested, along with a couple of other clubs.

"I met other clubs and listened to them, like I said I would do, but you can't help but be impressed by the size of Luton, the ambition and drive of the new manager and with the new players that are coming in.

"I think I've made a good decision."

Even with interest from the division above, the Yorkshireman – who scored his first senior goal at Kenilworth Road back in 2004 for home town team Sheffield United in a 3-2 win for the Hatters – admits that success is what he craves and that Luton are best placed to provide it.

Shaw said: "There were a couple of League Two teams interested in me but a couple of them fell away as things prevented them coming in for me, with players needing to be sold and things like that.

"Even then, Luton were the most likely to get success and that's what I want at my age.

"I've come to a club that I believe are going to win the league and I want to be a part of that.

"Luton are definitely one of the bigger clubs in League One, League Two and the Conference.

"We've still got to remember that we are a Conference club but we all want promotion.

"It is a big club and a massive draw at home and away and the priority is getting the club back where it belongs."
